UNION TRUST CO. IS BELIEF THAT FINANCIAL CRISIS HAS BEING LIQUIDATED; RUMORS ARE BLAMED

Shrinking Deposits And Heavy Withdrawals Lead To Action; Declare Institution Solvent; Other Banks Sound

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31.—The Union Trust Co., a Dayton financial institution, was closed today, state banking department officials announced here.

Heavy withdrawals were blamed for the action. In the last report of the bank, filed September 29, it listed total resources of $31,049,236, capital stock of $1,500,000 and surplus of $1,500,000.

W. G. Davidson is president of the bank and W. R. Craven is chairman of the board.

Ira J. Fulton, state banking superintendent, and Charles W. Miller, state liquidating agent with the banking department, were in Dayton today to take charge of the bank's affairs.

DAYTON, O., Oct. 31.—The Union Trust Co. failed to open its doors this morning.

Closing of the bank, decided upon as a result of instructions received from the state department of finance, was attributed to heavy withdrawals of deposits amounting to between $300,000 and $500,000 a day, depleting the cash reserve.

Wild rumors during the last year that shattered public confidence in the stability of the institution were also ascribed as an indirect reason, resulting in a shrinkage of deposits. There was no "run" on the bank.

Deposits at the close of business Friday totaled $15,700,000. Directors of the bank issued a statement saying the institution is solvent and bank examiners predicted that within a reasonable time depositors may be paid 50 per cent of their accounts.

None of the other Dayton banks is involved with the Union Trust Co. in the way of interlocking interests. The institution was the outgrowth of a merger of the Dayton Savings and Trust Co. and the City National Bank and Trust Co. in January, 1930. The consolidation gave the new bank total resources of $15,500,000. In the reorganization, Walter L. Davidson, president of the City National, became president of the combined banks and W. R. Craven is chairman of the board. The bank has more than 900 stockholders.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—Ending worldwide speculation over France's attitude toward disarmament negotiations, the foreign office today announced that France accepts the proposal of Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, for an armistice holiday of one year from November 1.

The communique announcing France's decision declared notification to this effect was being sent to the League of Nations at Geneva immediately.

France's announcement of participation in the holiday got just "under the wire." The time for the nations of the world to signify their willingness to participate in the year-long arms "truce" expires at midnight tonight.

The league's invitation to the world powers to suspend all armament construction for a period of one year was sent out on October 2, shortly after Grandi made his proposal before a session of the League of Nations Council.

Most of the responses were slow in arriving and France was among the last to signify her willingness to participate.

GENEVA, Oct. 31.—American acceptance of the proposed year's armistice holiday, contingent upon similar action by other principal military and naval powers, was received here today by the League of Nations.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—The German government today notified the League of Nations of its acceptance of the one-year armistice holiday proposed by Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy.

PRESIDENT HOOVER PLANS SHOWDOWN ON CRITICISM OF NAVY

Battle Line Drawn For Argument On Accusation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Battle lines were sharply drawn today as the knowledge of President Hoover concerning naval affairs and the integrity of the navy league prepared to go on public trial.

Chief interest centered around the identities of the "jury" Mr. Hoover will designate to determine whether he is "abysmally ignorant" of the true state of America's sea forces, as charged by William H. Gardner, president of the Navy League, or whether Gardner has been guilty of spreading a "series of falsehoods" regarding the administration's economy program, as charged by the President.

It was expected the committee of inquiry would be completed to-

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Treasury balance as of Oct. 29, 1931, $93,411, expenditures, $7,626,942.65; customs receipts, $32,799,595.34.

REPRIEVE FOR TWO PREVENTS RALLS DEATHS

Executive Order Saves
Lives Of Accused
Slayers

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31.—Saved by an executive order a scant few minutes before they were to have entered the death chamber at Ohio Penitentiary to be electrocuted for the slaying of Sheriff George Davenport of Crawford County, Blanton Ralls, 19, and his uncle Walter Ralls, 32, Crestline Negroes, today held a new grasp upon life.

A two-week reprieve ordered by Governor George White will enable attorneys for the condemned men to take action on the death-watch statement of Blanton Ralls that Davenport was shot by a man now dead—Elijah Ralls, another uncle, who was killed as he attempted to escape from jail the day after the sheriff's death.

"This is the truth of what happened," the young Negro's statement, given to Prison Chaplain K. E. Wall, declared. "Uncle Walter and I was in bed. Uncle Elijah came up and said that the officers were coming. Uncle Walter jumped out of bed. He picked up a rifle. 'Someone put a flashlight on him. Uncle Walter did not aim or shoot, but tried to run through a door. Uncle Elijah, who was somewhere in the room, did the shooting. I wanted to tell this at the trial but never was given a chance.'"

The stay of execution came after the time for the Negroes' deaths had been set back for an hour by a phone call from S. P. Dunkle, executive secretary to Governor White. Originally set for 4:45 p. m. by Warden F. E. Thomas, the electrocution was delayed until 7:45 when another phone call halted the proceedings and gave the two men another two weeks of life.

"That was the closest shave I ever had," Walter Ralls said as guards told him of the reprieve. Blanton smiled but remained quiet. The two Negroes had help hope against their decreed fate to the last meal. The parts of their last meal which they had been unable to eat had been carried back to their cells. Walter disclosed that he had turned to religion during what he believed were his last hours. He said he had closed his eyes in an endeavor to see "into the beyond."

"I closed my eyes and looked," he said, "but I didn't see anything."

The two weeks of life granted the men will bring the date of their execution, if no other stay is granted, to the date of Friday, the 13th of November.

O. S. U. CO-ED WINS HONOR SECOND TIME

COLUMBUS, Oct. 31.—A co-ed who was a prom queen in her freshman year today appeared to be the winner in a campus election for another royal position, that of homecoming queen at Ohio State University.

Ortha Smith of Columbus, now a junior at the university, unofficially was credited with winning the election pending a final tally of the votes. She will accompany J. Arleigh Huff, also of Columbus to a homecoming dance in connection with the navy football game November 7. Huff is general chairman of the celebration.

FARM PRICE INDEX SHOWS NO CHANGES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The farm price index compiled by the department of agriculture stood at 88 percent of the 1910-14 average on October 15, it was announced today. Price gains during the last two weeks, notably for wheat and cotton, did not occur early enough to be reflected in the latest tabulations.

The general index of farm prices of agricultural commodities was 72 on Sept. 15, and 106 on October 15 a year ago.

JERSEY CALF GIVES MILK
SPRINGFIELD, Mo.—Mother Nature gets tired of doing the same thing time after time and so, she often produces something as a sort of a joke. This particular joke is a Jersey calf, less than four weeks old, born here recently, that gives milk. The calf, weighing about sixty pounds, is in every other way normal and has been giving milk since it was born. It is owned by Ben Kerzen, a cattle buyer here.

Alicia Patterson, above, heiress to the Chicago Tribune and New York Daily News millions, is to wed Joseph W. Brooks, former All-American football star of Colgate university. The engagement became known when he was slightly injured in the crash of his fiancée's plane, at South Bend, Ind. Miss Patterson is in Europe.

JAPS IN MANCHURIA TAKE SALT REVENUE AS LATEST OFFENSE

Fear Of International
Complication Seen
In Action

PEIPING, Oct. 31.—Japanese military authorities in Manchuria today took two steps which threatened to cause international complications.

Without previous warning the Japanese seized the Manchurian salt revenues, totalling more than $3,000,000. At the same time they arrested the Chinese central government's salt revenue collector for Kirin and Heilungkiang provinces.

The entire consular corps at Harbin, including the United States representatives, George C. Hanson, telegraphed their legations here for instructions, pointing out that the Manchurian salt revenues are pledged as security for the foreign loan.

MUKDEN, Oct. 31.—Japanese authorities in Manchuria today took over salt revenues totalling more than $3,000,000 which normally would go directly into the treasury of the Manchurian provincial government.

The money, it was charged by C. G. G. Pearson, an official of the Nanking ministry of finance, was "forcibly removed" from the Bank of China at Newchang, where it had been deposited by tax collectors.

Later, Pearson said, it was turned over to the Chinese committee. For the maintenance of peace and order.

This committee was formed following the Japanese occupation of Manchuria last month. Since Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, whom the Nanking regime recognizes as Governor of Manchuria, withdrew to Peiping, a new mayor has been elected in Mukden.

The authorities in power at Mukden have moved rapidly in the last few days to obtain control of the salt revenues of this province, which amount to $35,000,000 annually.

Shortly after occupying Mukden the Japanese military closed most of the provincial banks here and seized their vaults. Since then local officials have been unable to receive their salaries.

EASIER MONEY SEEN; HOOVER IS OPTIMISTIC

Hoarding Declines;
Cash Circulation
Decreasing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Belief that the financial crisis in the United States probably has been passed was expressed by high officials today, as a result of a number of tendencies which were noted during the week.

Somewhat easier money conditions were indicated by the fact that the government was able to obtain about $60,000,000 in ninety-day bills with a 2.69 percent on a similar issue a week ago. Subscriptions to the new issue, to be dated November 2, were oversubscribed by $100,000,000 more than was the other block of bills.

Money conditions of the week drew an optimistic statement from President Hoover, who saw in them signs of a "great change" for the better. He said:

"I am happy to note the very great change which is evident in the credit situation since the announcement of financial plans on October 7."

"Following the abandonment of the gold standard in England a wave of great apprehension spread over the country. Hoarding of currency rose to the high point of $200,000,000 a week between that time and the announcement of the credit pool and other credit measures. Country bank failures had risen to nearly twenty-five a day during this period. At the same time the drain of gold abroad due to the alarm of foreign holders of American credit had in this period risen to as high as over $200,000,000 a week."

"Evidence over the last week indicates that not only has hoarding ceased, but actually $24,000,000 of hoarded money has returned to the banks. The small bank failures have almost ceased—the last report showing only seven out of 20,000 total. Foreign exchanges are returned to a basis at which it is no longer advantageous to ship gold abroad."

"The practical effect of this recovery is shown in an increase in the price of wheat by ten cents or twelve cents a bushel and cotton by $15 to $20 a bale."

Money in circulation dropped off $24,000,000 during the week ended Wednesday, an extremely favorable factor indicating cash may be coming back to the banks from hoarding. Normally at this season the annual increase in money circulation begins with the picking up of fall trade and industry. However, there is now a surplus of $1,000,000,000 more in circulation than is normal, so that a restoration of confidence and business improvement this year may see gradually declining volume of money in circulation for the next month."

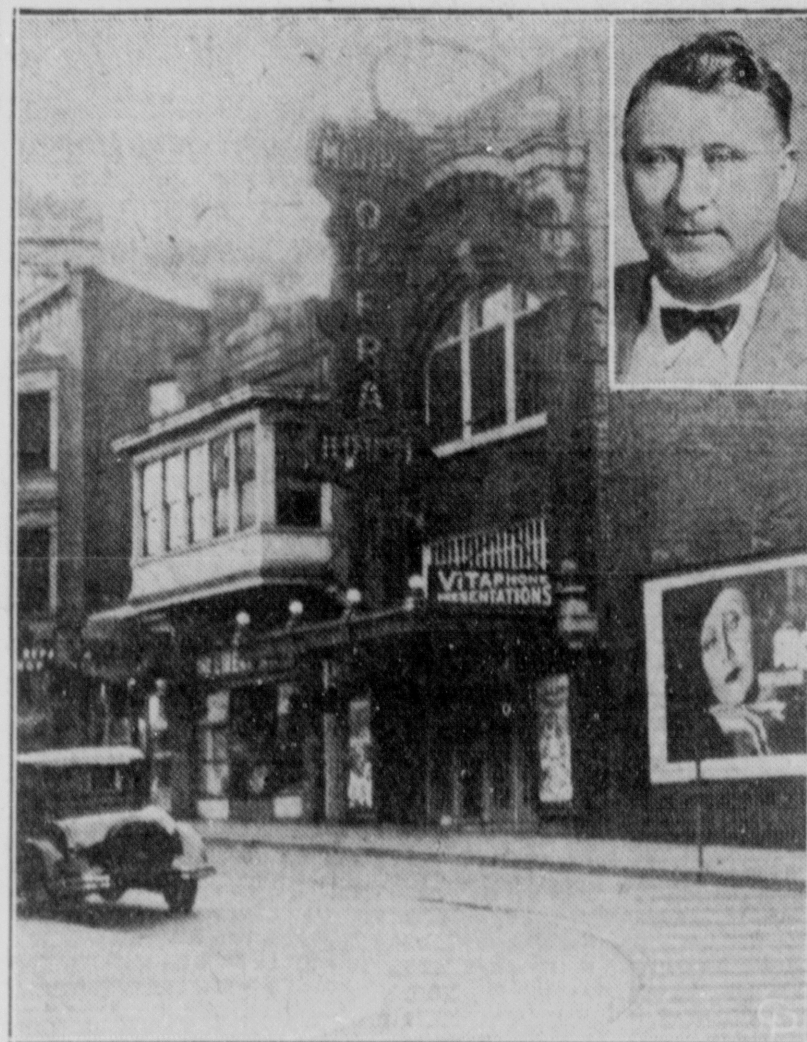

If next Thursday's figures of the federal board show another drop in circulation, officials said, it will be a fairly certain indicator that the unusual wave of money hoarding has been checked.

While most of the federal reserve banks have increased their rediscount rates, the New York Bank has passed two meetings without a change in rates, indicating possibly that the 3 1/2 percent level will be maintained for the time being, with the credit situation being eased by less hoarding and slowing down of gold exports.

Once the national credit bankers corporation begins to function to relieve the pressure on banks a certain improvement will come, in the view of high officials. It was believed that the worst of the banking crisis has been passed. Federal reserve figures for October were expected to show that there were

"BLUEBEARD" TRIAL AT THEATER

Real melodrama will be enacted in this old opera house, at Clarkburg, W. Va., as Harry P. Powers, inset, confessed slayer of two women and three children, at Quiet Dell, W. Va., goes on trial in November. The old court house has been torn down and the new one will not be finished for the trial.

Modern Robinson Crusoe Saga Finished In Safety

BALBOA, C. Z., Oct. 31.—Back to civilization after a six months' "Robinson Crusoe" existence on a little island in the South Seas, three tanned and weather-beaten American adventurers arrived here today aboard the U. S. S. Sacramento.

They were Paul Stachwick of Huron, S. D., Gordon Brawner of Springfield, Ill., and Captain Elmer Palliser of San Diego, California, who were rescued less than a week ago after being marooned for half a year on Cocos Island, an uninhabited pin-point of land off Ecuador.

The Sacramento docked at Balboa shortly after 8 a. m. Captain Palliser, an old prospector, was the only one of the three who showed any signs of the hardship he and his companions underwent during the lonely months they were cast away on the island after wrecking of their yacht "West Wind" in a violent storm.

A nervous twitch on his lips and his pale eyes told their story of the sufferings he had endured. Stachwick and Brawner, fortified with the "India-rubber" resistance of youth, were smiling and calm, looking more like ordinary members of the Sacramento's crew than castaways jerked out of the jaws of death.

Stachwick and Brawner were clean-shaven, just as they were when members of the Sacramento's crew picked them off the beach at Dampier's Head, Cocos Island, but Palliser had a full growth of beard on his weather-tanned face.

The adventurers set out from San Diego, California, early this

AILING OHIO COAL INDUSTRY TO BE DOCTORED BY COMMITTEES

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31.—Ohio's ailing coal industry today was given an additional set of doctors under the guidance of Governor George White, who stated that further conferences in an effort to stabilize the industry would be held with permanent committees representing operators and miners.

The governor's announcement came at the conclusion of his initial conference with Ohio coal operators, in which he conveyed to them the problems of the workers as given him in an earlier meeting with representatives of the United Mine Workers.

A suggestion that both miners and operators set up permanent committees was readily accepted by the conferees and each group named five men.

The committee for the operators is composed of W. L. Robinson, vice president of the Youthology and Ohio Coal Co., Cleveland; R. L. Ireland Jr., vice president of the Hanna Coal Co., Cleveland; William Emery Jr., president of the Cambridge Collieries Co., Cleveland; Fred Essex, secretary of the Essex Coal Co., Columbus, and George K. Smith, president of the Sunday Creek Coal Co., Columbus.

The United Mine Workers named as their representative Percy Tetlow, international vice president of the organization; Lee Hall, president of the Ohio organization of the nine workers, and G. W. Savage, its secretary. John Saxton, national organizer of the body, and James R. McCormick, international executive from Ohio for the United Mine Workers of America.

The two committees are to meet at separate times with the governor as soon as he is able to return to his office at the state capital. He is now recovering from a broken collar bone received in an automobile accident, and the first meetings were held at the executive mansion.

The governor, in announcing the selection of the two groups, stated that he would "continue to search for ways and means to improve conditions in the coal industry and shall make full use of these committees in my efforts."

He also indicated that he would continue through his own special investigators to seek the causes of continual disturbances, uncertainty and unrest.

A joint meeting of the two committees may eventually result from the separate conferences.

XENIA CLAIMS ABLY OFFERED BEFORE BOARD

Brief Filed Proved
Best; Will Make
Recommendation

The hospitalization board of the U. S. Veterans Bureau, will visit Xenia on a tour of inspection of possible location of the proposed new $2,000,000 government hospital, it was learned in dispatches from Washington Saturday.

This was the chief announcement affecting this city to come out of the public hearing on sites held by the board Friday, at which Xenia was ably represented. Information from Xenia's representatives at the capital Saturday indicated that Xenia's presentations of its claims as a hospital site commanded full attention of the board and that Xenia's brief, a handsomely bound brochure setting forth this city's advantages, was the most attractive summary of claims introduced at the meeting.

For this reason it was indicated that Xenia's bid for the hospital gained respectful attention at the hearing and the fact that the board will visit this city indicates that Xenia must further marshal its forces to prepare to "sell" this city as a location for the hospital.

It is indicated that the board will make its recommendation to the President shortly after November 5, which may limit the time it will have to visit possible sites.

Reports coming in from the hearing on the U. S. Veterans' Hospital project, for which Xenia has put forth its claim for location, are somewhat encouraging and indicate that the presentation of this city's delegation was sufficiently impressive to place Xenia on the eligible list.

A telegram from C. W. Murphy, one of the members of the Xenia delegation at Washington received Saturday morning, reads as follows:

"Our case was well presented and the entire board came to attention. The brief we presented was far superior in appearance to any other submitted. The arguments on absence of dope peddlers and bootleggers brought forth a big laugh."

Another telegram received Saturday from a party on the inside of political Washington, with whom the Gazette had arranged for a private report of proceedings, wired as follows:

"Hospitalization board of veterans bureau will visit Xenia. Xenia data covers every phase of the general question and shows how the situation could best be met by locating the hospital there."

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 31.—The hospitalization board of the Veterans' Bureau is bewildered by the conflicting claims of fifty Ohio cities as the logical site for the new Ohio veterans' hospital.

Ohio congressmen, each backing the merits of his district, but individually avoiding commitment to specific sites, are arranging a literary for the board, so that they may view the localities which appeal to them from the hearing Friday.

President Hoover, and to some extent, Chairman Gifford, of the commission on unemployment, are urging a speedy decision on the Ohio hospital, as well as on other public building projects, which will give work to thousands in the building trades.

The $2,000,000 or more to be spent on the hospital is available as soon as the preliminary details have been worked out.

The American Legion and other veterans organizations are urging prompt action on all pending hospital projects, because of the increasing demand for beds and the limited number contracted for by the bureau in the localities too far from any of the established government hospitals. Maps, charts, and a huge pile of briefs, filed by the Ohio organizations seeking the hospital, are being carefully studied by the board.

In the fight, all smaller towns are united to the extent of opposing location of the hospital in any large city or in its suburbs.

It is urged that dense centers of growing populations are not suitable locations. In Washington the merit of the argument is seen in the case of the Walter Reed Hospital, which is in the north end of the city and cramped for space. Traffic conditions along this north approach to the capital have brought demands that a street be cut through the tract. The suburb of every other large growing city, it is argued, faces this same possibility.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Ohio will get one of the finest hospitals for disabled war veterans in the United States if the federal hospitalization board has its way, according to the belief today of the majority of delegates who asked the board to recommend a general hospital in their state.

The apportionment would come out of the $20,000,000 authorized for hospitalization by the last congress.

There was no doubt in the minds of the delegates that the board would recommend to President Hoover the need for the hospital.

DIVORCE SOUGHT BY WIFE; FATHER ASKS CUSTODY OF CHILD

Divorce from Clarence Wright, whom she charges with gross neglect of duty, is sought in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Clara Wright, who also asks to be restored to her maiden name of Tracy. They were married November 1, 1927. No children were born of the union. The plaintiff complains she has had to support herself and pay rent money besides.

CHILD'S CUSTODY SOUGHT
Arwood B. Curtis, who obtained a divorce from Helen L. Curtis in Common Pleas Court June 15, 1930, has brought suit against his former wife seeking to be awarded custody of their infant daughter, Rita Louise, aged 1 month. Since the child was unborn at the time the divorce case was heard, custody of the infant was not determined upon then, according to the plaintiff. The divorced wife now resides at 619 Edison St., Dayton.

ORDER ALLOWED
A temporary restraining order has been allowed in the injunction suit filed in Common Pleas Court by J. M. McMillan against Kate R. Barber and W. L. Miller, Attorney F. H. Dean represents the plaintiff.

NOTE JUDGMENTS
John T. Harbine, Jr., has recovered the following note judgments in Common Pleas Court: against George W. Jackson and Edna Lee Jackson for $283.60; against Ulysses S. Monce and Laura Monce for $250.35; against Arthur W. Gurkles and Sarah J. Gurkles for $182.50.
H. H. Schmidt has been awarded a note judgment for $856 in a suit naming Rufus Wical and H. A. Beam as defendants.

considerably fewer bank failures in that month than in September. With the credit corporation prepared to cope with the temporary emergency, the federal reserve board will soon make public the results of a comprehensive study of the general banking situation which is said to contain important recommendations for a permanent strengthening of the system. Some officials expressed confidence that November would see some slow but sure improvements. The generally low price situation was expected to stimulate buying materially during the fall and the Christmas season.

REV. VORHEES WILL ENTERTAIN SYNOD

The Rev. E. A. Vorhees, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Vorhees, now minister of the Church of the Reformation, Chicago, Ill., will be host pastor to the twenty-third semi-annual convention of the Chicago Conference of the Illinois Synod of the United Lutheran Church in America, November 3. The Rev. Mr. Vorhees is a native Xenian and returns each summer to spend part of his vacation with relatives and friends here. He accepted the call to become minister of the Church of the Reformation during the past year and has served churches in another part of Chicago and St. Louis, Mo.

Famous Stage Tradition Introduced to Aviation

"Show Must Go On," So Betty Lund Is On Air Pageant Program, Though Widowed by Plane Crash Only a Few Days Ago.

BETTY LUND and FREDDIE LUND.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 31.—The decision of Betty Lund, famous barnstorming aviatrix of Troy, Ohio, to take part in the program of the all-Southern aircraft pageant at Charlotte, despite the fact that she was widowed by an air crash only a few days ago, is a manifestation of the fact that a tradition of the stage and circus has been adopted by aviation.
"The show must go on" is a phrase familiar to everyone who has any knowledge of the world of footlights and its satellite, the "big top." Come weal or woe, birth, death or marriage, it is an iron-bound tradition of these worlds of make-believe that nothing must interfere with the raising of the curtain. And examples of the tradition being faithfully carried out under terrific handicaps.

But the case of Betty Lund is the first where the Spartan sentiment has been introduced into aviation.
Betty and her husband, Freddie Lund, were familiar and popular figures at every meet throughout the country where air calisthenics featured as the piece de resistance of the program. Blithely they flew from one fair to another, putting on their act and competing in various events, happy in their hazardous profession.
Good fliers both, they made an ideal team. Freddie had taught Betty how to fly and patiently coached her until he had to admit that he could teach her no more—she was his equal, if not his superior, in hurling a plane through the air in every conceivable type of stunt.
Since their marriage in Los Angeles, Betty and Freddie had barnstormed together, an ideal husband and wife partnership, leading in the carefree life of "show folk."

with never a thought of the tremendous risks of their job. They were good and they knew it and the knowledge gave them confidence. Betty won the "dead stick" landing competition at the Chicago air meet in 1930, which goes to show that she knew her airplane.
But tragedy stepped in to break up the ideal partnership. Freddie was killed in a crash at Lexington, Va., on October 4, and Betty's world almost came to an end then and there. But girl will tell, and the young aviatrix has more than her share of that laudable virtue.

When news of Freddie Lund's death was received at Charlotte, the officials of the air pageant removed the names of the dead flier and his widow from the program—they were entered in several events—but Betty announced that she would go through with her part. Thus is the immortal epic of the stage introduced into the modern circus of the air.
Betty Lund will continue the work alone, risking her neck for the amusement of the earthbound thousands while the mighty roar of her motor chants a dirge for the partner she has lost, now and then changing its tempo to the song of desperation, "On with the play."

FIND WOMAN'S BODY WHEN TIDE RECEDES

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The crumpled body of a woman of about 40, who had been strangled to death was revealed today by the receding tide in the mud flats of Kew-Forest Bay.
A piece of picture wire was still twisted around her throat and heavy weights had been fastened to her body before it was tossed into the water by the killers.

day. The executive last night was scanning a roster of the Navy League's membership, from which he intends to pick a large portion of the group he confidently expects will make Gardner modify his words concerning White House politics. Whether the chairman, or "prosecutor," will come from within the league ranks, however, was problematical.
Gardner and Walter Bruce Howe, chairman of the board of directors of the league, were preparing for a specially called meeting of the executive committee, which will meet early next week to consider the Presidential challenge to a public airing of what is back of the whole affair.
Rumors floated around galore. It was whispered Mr. Hoover was loaded for bear—that for three weeks he had been conducting an undercover investigation into the sources of Navy League information with special reference to whether any line officers of the navy had been furnishing the civilian organization with ammunition.

Again, it was stated the executive was calling for a showdown at this time and in this manner to stave off a congressional investigation next December. Rep. Fred A. Britten (R) Illinois, leader of the "big navy" forces in the House, already has served notice he will press for such an inquiry.
Others said the President was employing his rather spectacular offensive against Gardner and the navy league in advance of the assembling of congress so as to serve forcible notice on propaganda organizations of all sorts that the administration will brook no underground interference with its legislative economy program.

Navy circles were agog over the effect the whole business would have on the status of Secretary Charles Francis Adams. Adams commands the whole-hearted backing of the "admirals" to an extent few secretaries have enjoyed, and they are disturbed by rumors that one upshot of the inquiry may be his resignation and the appointment of Assistant Secretary Ernest Lee Jahncke as his successor. Jahncke, a practical politician from New Orleans, is one of the President's intimates.
Adams has maintained tight-lipped silence since friction over the navy budget first came to the surface, maintaining yesterday even that he had not seen Gardner's statement which brought matters to a head.
Secretary of State Stimson has joined Mr. Hoover in branding as "flagrantly false" Gardner's charges that the President and Premier MacDonald, of England, reached naval agreements two years ago "never officially divulged in their entirety," and that the administration refused to let the senate foreign relations committee see the full record of its negotiations preparatory to the London naval conference of 1930.

If Mr. Hoover is as successful as he thinks he will be, he intends to stand firmly on his demand that Gardner apologize publicly for calling him "abysmally ignorant."

CROSSING TRAGEDY AT SPRING VALLEY BASIS FOR DAMAGE SUIT

An automobile-train collision at the Pike St. crossing in Spring Valley, six miles southwest of Xenia, claimed the lives of a Columbus family of three, including two women and one man, last June 14. The basis of a $50,000 damage suit filed in Common Pleas Court Saturday morning against the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. The damage action was brought by William C. Sheppard, 368 Nash-

REFORMER HEARD IN ADDRESS FRIDAY AT ANTIOCH COLLEGE

"The Limitation of Reform" was characterized as impermanence in an address given Friday before students and faculty of Antioch College here by William Dudley Foulke, of Richmond, Ind., reformer of national reputation and experience. Mr. Foulke, who is also well-known as an author, illustrated his point from his own experience in the field of suffrage, and in municipal and civil service reform.

Mr. Foulke, former president of the National Civil Service Reform League and chairman of the U. S. Civil Service Commission under President Roosevelt, stressed the abuses of the system of discriminatory appointment and declared: "More than one-third of the time of legislators was devoted to peddling offices; corruption was everywhere; public spirit was dead. Then civil service examinations were provided and soon extended. During the first year there were 18,000 government workers selected in competition; now there are 400,000." He urged development of the public alertness now needed to prevent the intrusion of corruption.

"As president of the National Women's Suffrage Association," the speaker stated, "I participated in a nationwide movement—one reform that resulted in permanent achievement."

Mr. Foulke also reviewed the work of the National Municipal League, of which he was a member, in originating the city manager plan and the system of proportional representation. "These helped," he asserted, "to improve conditions of municipal government, the sore spots of American society."

BARBERS REDUCE PRICES HERE

Reductions of various amounts in the prices of haircuts and shaves, in effect at different barber shops in the city Saturday, brought back memories of twenty years ago when a patron could get a shave for a dime and a trim for 20 cents.

All Xenia barber shops, a survey indicated Saturday, have cut their prices below the standard of 20 cents for shaves and 40 cents for haircuts, rates which have existed since 1913.

The Mel Johnson shop, when it reopened at a new location on S. Detroit St., cut its prices to 35 cents for haircuts and 15 cents for shaves.

The Harve Coates shop on S. Detroit St., went this reduction on haircuts one better Saturday with announcement of a new price of 30 cents, although shaves still cost 20 cents.

Shops in the west end part of the city have for some time offered haircuts for as low as 20 cents and shaves for 10 cents, putting prices back to their original low level. Other shops have prices of 25 and 15 cents.

BISHOP OF LIBERIA SPEAKS AT MEETING OF AUXILIARY HERE

The Rt. Rev. Robert E. Campbell, bishop of Liberia, spoke on work in that country at the fall meeting of the Dayton Convocation of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church at Christ Episcopal Church, this city, Friday.

"The Episcopal Church has the largest and oldest mission in Liberia," the Rev. Mr. Campbell said. He has been engaged in mission work there a number of years and is returning to that country soon.

He came to the United States this summer to attend the general triennial meeting of the Episcopal Church in Denver.

Mrs. Louise H. Sandoe, Mansfield, formerly of this city, and vice president of the group, presided at the meeting. Miss Louise H. Sandoe, Columbus, president of the Women's Auxiliary of the southwestern Ohio diocese and Mrs. Allen McGregor, Springfield, a member of the board of directors of the National Women's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church, spoke during the morning session and gave reports of the meeting in Denver this summer.

The meeting opened at 10:30 o'clock with the service of Holy Communion in charge of the Rev. Gilbert P. Symons, Cincinnati, assisted by the Rev. Frederick Fischer, Wilmington. Mrs. Hugh M. Bone, Columbus, sang offering secretary of the diocese, gave a report of 1931's thank offering at the meeting. Luncheon was served at noon at the First Reformed Church by the women of that church.

More than 100 members attended the meeting and delegates were present from Dayton, Greenville, Hamilton, London, Mechanicsburg, Middletown, Oxford, Piqua, Springfield, Troy, Urbana, Washington C. H., Waynesville, Wilmington and Xenia.

YOUTHS BOUND OVER HERE FOR BURGLARY CHARGES SATURDAY

Pleading guilty to housebreaking, two 19-year-old youths who confessed to Cincinnati police that they burglarized and ransacked a closed residence on W. Market St. last Sunday night were held to the grand jury under bonds of $1,000 each by Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith Saturday morning. In default of bond they were sent to jail.

The robbery was not disclosed to Xenia police until John Lloyd Ayres, Seattle, Wash., and Charles Mawory living at Evanston, a suburb of Cincinnati, admitted the burglary after they were picked up and held for investigation at Cincinnati last Tuesday.

The youths were returned to Xenia to be prosecuted. All of the stolen property has been recovered, police believe. The house ransacked was an unoccupied dwelling of Harry D. Shaffer, 22 W. Market St., the robbery being perpetrated while the family was away. Clothing and jewelry constituted most of the loot.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

And he said, I will make all my goodness pass before thee, and I will proclaim the name of the Lord before thee; and will be gracious and will shew mercy on whom I will shew mercy.—Exodus, xxxiv, 19.

MACDONALD'S TRIUMPH

The outcome of the British election is an immense personal triumph for Premier MacDonald and his work as head of the emergency National Government. It justifies and rewards his decision to place patriotism and duty above party. On the other hand, the complexion of the returns is an emphatic rebuke for the Labor party, which cast Mr. MacDonald out, and has saved only a handful of seats in the House of Commons, most of its leaders having gone down to defeat. As for the anti-MacDonald, Lloyd George wing of the much divided Liberal party, the ex-Premier narrowly escaped being the only survivor of Tuesday's struggle.

The immense gain in the number of Parliamentary seats held by the Conservatives indicates a majority of a size that might easily enable them to take over the Government and create a strictly party regime if they should so choose. That they will undertake anything of the sort, at least for the present, seems scarcely credible.

Doubtless the party leaders will undertake to advance their particular ideas and policies within limits. But they will scarcely fail to remember that many of the Conservative members elected Tuesday were chosen, not because of their partisan affiliations, but as supporters of the National Government and its head, who, though a man without a party, is by force of circumstance and by reason of character and capacity, one of the outstanding statesmen of the time.

Mr. MacDonald's leadership is the leadership the majority of the British clearly want if the way they have cast their ballots means anything. His policies are the policies they approve and in which they have faith. Should the Conservatives undertake to force him aside without ceremony while he has a clear popular mandate behind him and his work is unfinished, they would be guilty of an act of bad faith and treachery that would be thoroughly un-British and would invite early punishment. In a sense, too, they would be repudiating one of their own. Regardless of what he may call himself, and regardless of his views on any particular political policy, Mr. MacDonald by temperament, instinct and practice is more a Conservative than anything else.

NO HARM DONE

While the Ile de France fretted at her moorings, while Papa Laval reflected on the obnoxiousness of youth to time and space, while the captain paced the quarter-deck and said things—we fancy—which only deep-sea sailors can say picturesquely, Mlle. Josee Laval was tripping the light fantastic with Jimmy Walker in one of New York's exclusive night clubs. The boat could wait. The sprightly daughter of the President of the Council of Ministers of France was rounding off the end of a perfect day, as she expressed it. She might not get back to New York soon and she was bound to pay it the compliment Americans so often pay Paris: She wasn't going to say au revoir before she had to.

All this was absent from the official program of her distinguished father's visit to the United States. What Josee said to Jimmy and what Jimmy said to Josee will not appear in a State Department release. Yet, we venture to say, the holding up of the Ile de France for one more dance on American soil will enshrine Mlle. Laval in more hearts in her own country and ours than the ponderous conversations in Washington touched, will be long remembered by the participants—and will not have done any harm. The trip to Washington was an affair of state. This was one of heart and feet. A statesman, who has a charming daughter, always should take her on his missions with him. She can sometimes enliven diplomacy by a human touch.

POLICE METHODS

American police heads came back from the convention of the International Association of Police Chiefs in Paris, with the information that solving crime is a much simpler matter in Europe than in the United States. Over there the task of catching and punishing criminals is not complicated by the existence of strongly organized gangs and well entrenched racketeers. Gun-toting is comparatively unknown. The registration of population all over Europe enables the police to know where every person is at any time. The process of rounding up known criminals is thus facilitated.

Over here things are different. Gun-toting has become so widespread in this country that even judges on the bench have suggested arming the citizenry and allowing it to "shoot it out" with the thugs. Gunmen murder at the bidding or organized rackets that are so well entrenched politically that they openly flout the law and the courts. The absence of any such general registration of population as obtains in Europe multiplies the difficulties of the police in apprehending known criminals, as the number of "wanted persons" constantly at large in the country amply shows.

American police officials do not advocate the introduction of general police registration in the United States. The American people would not stand for it. At the same time it is just as well that they be reminded that they are placing on the police in this connection, as well as in connection with gun-toting and the tolerance of rackets and organized gangs living by violating the law, a handicap for which the nation is paying dearly. The truth is that this country, adult in industry and commerce, still wears its Colonial swaddling clothes in the precincts of government. There are some things that are done better in Europe than in America. One of them is handling the crime problem.

What has become of Prof. Shaw and his talk about morons? Will somebody give him a whistler?

We shall now discover if it was war or uniform that put Smedley Butler so often on the front page.

A high tariff in England will lower the tone of English criticism of tariffs in Canada and the United States.

Al Capone will have to admit that you can put a million dollars in jail, even when it is protected by a guard of gunmen.

Senators are skeptical of benefits accruing to the world from M. Laval's visit. Are not senators always skeptical of things they do not understand?

The Hallowe'en soap that is being lavished on store and automobile windows might better be applied to the faces of the embodied spirits guilty of this particular nuisance.

Albert Einstein says that "anyone who thinks that science is trying to make human life easier or more pleasant is utterly mistaken." Certainly it would be hard to show that science has, on the whole, made life easier or more pleasant, if we except from the reckoning the science of medicine and surgery.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—Wide-eyed wanderings:

Along Fifth avenue on a Sunday morning, Hope Williams, the actress, sitting with another beautiful babe in the back of the longest, lowest, leanest limousine I have ever seen.

The curious statuettes atop the traffic signals. . . . A symbolic gentleman clad in a couple of scarves and what appears to be a dough-boy cap, holding out something or other in one hand. Must telephone Police Commissioner Mulrooney to find out what they are all about.

"For rent—loft, suitable for photographic studio or postage stamps for collections." And in Lexington avenue, later, peering into the several stamp stores which are as ornate and prosperous-looking as jewelers. . . . Plate glass counters cover thousands of specimens. Errors at $200 each. Rare watermarks at $500 per sheet.

The gentlemen who sit gravenly fingering stamp tongs over albums.

I have never seen a fat stamp collector, although many philatelists have whiskers. . . . Small clatters in the stores on roller skates. . . . Memory: My first published work was in a collector's magazine.

WOODEN SHIPS—IRON MEN

The lovers of sail have had what may be their last impressive fling at the steam and steel efficiency of modern ships. Men like Captain Tom Sheridan, a governor of the New York Athletic association, Captain Felix Reisenberg, the writer, and Commander John S. Baylis, chief of staff of the United States coast guard destroyer division, want sailing ships back as training units.

Specifically, they want the New York Nautical school to reconsider the substitution of the Empire State, a steamship, for the Newport, a sailing craft, as training ship.

Captain Sheridan is violent in his protest. He says: "There is nothing in the world like a sail to instill into a boy the will to do the things that must be done at sea if a man is to succeed. Nothing can produce in him the sea zest, the feeling for the sea, that sails can."

For the comfort of modern liners, Captain Sheridan had a contemptuous sniff. "Send the boys out to uncharted seas, make them live dangerously," he urged. "A steamer is no ship, anyway!"

HOP, SKIP AND JUMP
A firm of sports apparel dealers in Madison avenue is tagged Hill and Dale. . . . A young woman who has just begun to illustrate newspaper series is named Vera Clare.

But don't get me started with stuff like that.

My corner newsdealer tells me that the more lurid and sexy magazines are thumbed to pieces by passersby who do not buy, and nobody ever picks up the staid and expensive publications without making a purchase.

Overheard in the swankiest jewelry store of them all: "Sure, it's expensive getting a $10 pen engraved with my full name, but there are people these days who'd change their initials for ten bucks."

The most thrilling dollar show in New York remains the view from the Empire State tower.

BROADWAY METEORS

The history of Broadway is full of theatrical meteors who rose and fell in unpredictable courses. Some of them didn't fall at all—which is news. There was Oscar Hammerstein, who made a fortune in vaudeville only to turn to grand opera and grow weary of that.

Charles Frohman lost money in musicals, but profited hugely out of the straight drama. Jesse Lasky was a wonder at turning out vaudeville smashes, but when he tried a de luxe cabaret the venture flopped spectacularly. In motion pictures he recouped with a bang, as everyone knows.

CHINA'S PLACE IN THE SUN?

PRESENT WET OFFENSIVE IS ONE OF PREPARATION FOR PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON.—The noise of next winter's congressional fighting over prohibition will be terrific, but the truth is that the wet leaders do not expect to launch their real modification offensive earlier than the session of 1932-3.

This does not mean that they will be inactive in the meantime. Between December 7, when the lawmakers will convene, and the indeterminate date of their adjournment, probably toward the end of April, they intend to keep up a series of fierce attacks on the dries.

There is no doubt that the dries will be numerically somewhat weaker than they were, due to wet victories last November. The wets think they will prove to be further disorganized by such recent developments as the American Legion's vote, at its Detroit gathering in September, demanding submission of the wet-and-dry question to the states.

Nevertheless, it generally is agreed in wet circles that the dry's defense will be too strong to be seriously dented during the coming winter.

Managers of the wet campaign believe, indeed, that they will be able to checkmate whatever attempts may be made to strengthen present dry regulations, as, for example, through Senator Morris Sheppard's plan to penalize liquor buyers, as well as bootleggers.

They likewise will seek to prevent any increase in enforcement appropriations and perhaps to curtail them slightly, in the name of economy, though they will not try to cut them off altogether, noting that that would be overdoing matters.

The introduction of measures to legalize 3 or 4 per cent beer will not be neglected and these bills will be genuinely pushed, but without much hope of accomplishing more than to advertise the merits claimed for them from the standpoint of unemployment relief, an increased demand for such farm products as breweries require and revenue raising.

But the main object of the wets' 1931-32 program will be less the attainment of direct results than to stir up public opinion in preparation for a tremendous effort to get a wet plank into at least one of the major party platforms some eight months hence.

It is no secret that wet strategists are not optimistic as to the G. O. P. platform.

They regard their Democratic prospects as fairly promising. To comprehend their reasoning fully, it should be understood that the nomination of a wet presidential candidate, much as the wet high command desires it, will not alone serve wet purposes. A wet platform is needed, too, to commit candidates for the senate and house of representatives likewise to a policy of prohibition repeal or modification.

This is exactly what dry Democratic politicians do not like about the idea.

Republican statesmen do not care so much. They anticipate a G. O. P. declaration of a sufficiently elastic nature to permit their adherence to it without unduly straining their principles, whether wet or dry.

Dry Jeffersonians, however, sense the danger of an unmistakably wet plank's adoption at their convention, and realize the mighty awkward fix they will be placed in if compelled to stand pat for unadulterated prohibition among their home folk while acquiescing nationally in a program of repeal or modification.

Anyway, the wet tacticians calculate that, if they succeed as to the desired wet plank and it is well received by the voters in November, 1932, they will be armed to go to work in earnest at the succeeding session of congress.

The wets admittedly bank heavily upon the American Legion's vote in Detroit, as showing dry majorities in only a dozen out of the 48 states—and of that dozen only half ordinarily Democratic.

The fact remains that cautious politicians are chary of recognizing the American Legion ballot as absolutely conclusive.

Neither wets nor dries, to be quite candid, are very sure what the Legion did signify.

With its contrasting totals of 1,008 wets to only 394 dries, it undeniably has a wet appearance. Anti-Saloon league statements point out, it is true, that a referendum is all that was called for—not necessarily actual repeal of the dry law. For all that, the strictures which the Legion adopted, relating to prohibition, certainly suggested an unfavorable majority sentiment toward the eighteenth amendment's effects, not to mention the detail that it is hard to see why dries should care for a referendum to confirm what they have already help.

Your husband has, apparently, if you are not mistaken in your surmises—reached the "dangerous age" and given way to its temptations. It seems to be a common condition, although there are people, as you say, who are too fine to succumb, but who keep the faith until "death do them part."

"What's the answer in your case? Hold on, my dear. Your home and happiness are worth fighting for. Don't give up your home or your help.

These are: Robinson and Caraway, Arkansas; Capper and McGill, Kansas; Harrison and Stephens, Mississippi; Norris and Howell, Nebraska; Thomas of Oklahoma (Thomas P. Gore was elected to the senate from the Sooner State as a wet last November); Smith and Byrnes, South Carolina; Sheppard and Connally, Texas; Smoot of Utah (Smoot's fellow senator, William H. King, always has been opposed to national prohibition); Jones and Dill, Washington; Hatfield and Neely, West Virginia, and Kendrick and Carey, Wyoming.

Their states went out-and-out dry at the Legion gathering. They, too, are dry and have nothing to worry about.

Perhaps Brookhart and Dickinson of Iowa should be included in the list. The Hawkeye commonwealth did not go dry but it did not go wet, either; it broke even, 22-22.

Otherwise it is difficult for a dry to argue as he would prefer to argue from the Legion's lineup. And yet—and yet—was it a really representative vote? To politicians from hitherto almost solidly dry states it seems wellnigh incredible.

Besides, there is this to be taken into consideration.

On election day, even though the wets may be in a majority, they split their vote; the dries vote virtually as a unit.

Ammonia Used In Sickness

By LOGAN CLENDENIN, M. D.

Whenever anybody faints or feels faint, and with certain people whenever they are going to hear any bad news, there is sure to be someone who says, "Get the ammonia."

This ammonia is recognized by the United States government and is included in the pharmacopoeia, the official list of drugs. It is called Spiritus ammoniac aromaticus, or to put this into English and what you usually say, aromatic spirits of ammonia. It is a clear liquid with a strong ammonia smell, and when swallowed gives a warm stimulus to the mouth and stomach.

When analyzed you will find it consists of various ingredients. One is ammonia carbonate, which is also used for other purposes in medicine. Besides that there is some free ammonia. And there is some alcohol. This latter does its part in producing the warm feeling, the stimulation and the restoring to consciousness, of the drug.

There is one good thing about aromatic spirits of ammonia—they do no harm. Their effect is very transitory, and in ten minutes or so all the ammonia which was in a teaspoonful of aromatic ammonia has left the system, so another teaspoonful may be given. Undoubtedly ammonia is a stimulant to the nervous system. It also raises blood pressure and increases the action of the heart. It does so immediately and for a short time, so aromatic spirits of ammonia is the ideal thing for the purposes it is usually used for—those feelings of faintness due to shock or weakness when the circulation is momentarily depressed. Of course, it is also true that most of these conditions immediately get well anyhow, but even so, the aromatic ammonia does good work; it gets rid of the most excitable of the group of helpers because she goes to look for the ammonia bottle, and lets everybody feel that something is being done.

There are no other drugs used for stimulation of the circulation that can be recommended for household use. Except whiskey and brandy. They undoubtedly are effective, but some people have a prejudice against them and refuse to try them.

We hear occasional reports about the revival of apparently dead people with adrenalin injections into the heart. The action of this drug is very powerful and it actually does what the sensational accounts say—restores apparently dead persons. But after they are restored they seldom stay alive more than an hour or two, so its value is not very permanent. Even when injected hypodermically it is a powerful stimulant.

But it is also very dangerous when given in too large doses and has to be administered hypodermically—both of which contradict its use as a household drug, because unquestionably when somebody close to you is dangerously ill you are not at all enough to treat the emergency with all the precautions necessary.

The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Hubby Is Cold

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Another heart broken wife writes me as follows:

"DEAR MISS LEE: Will you aid me, too? After 15 years of married life—married to the only man I ever did or ever will love, I have just become like 'poison ivy' to him. He doesn't even care to touch me in any way. Yet he seems to like me in some peculiar, unexplained way."

"All the nice little intimate things I enjoyed so much are gone, and I do miss them so, for he used to be so affectionate with me."

"Of course I think there is another woman. I have had several unsigned letters telling me about some woman. I wouldn't have given much consideration to the letters if friend husband had not changed so toward me. When I ask him about it I get a sort of silly grin. Then I feel more humiliated than ever."

"There really are some people who have a sort of fineness about them that breaking of the marriage vow seems altogether intolerable. I want to stay until death do us part, and see the curtain rung down on our little drama. We have no children. But how can I, Miss Lee?"

"This has been going on for about a year, but the last couple of months have been dreadful, believe me! I don't want another man. I want him back again, the old loving pal he once was. I want to be near and dear to him and not like this. We are both in our 40's, and if those letters are true, the other woman is also. Please help."

man at the first call to arms. Patience is your best weapon and the hardest to attain.

Unless your husband gets so enamored of this woman—if he really is—going on day after day in your usual way, making home happy and smoothly running, doing as you always have, and pretending not to notice his attitude, would be the wisest course. Boy, don't I know how hard it's going to be?

Usually when a man has the kind of wife I imagine you are he wakes up after awhile and thanks God for his narrow escape from disaster. I trust this will happen in your husband's case. If things get pretty bad so that you feel yourself breaking down you manage to get away from home for a time? That might help.

Interest yourself—no matter how hard this may seem—in things outside your home, preferably in some work to help others. And I earnestly hope that you will get your wish and your old loving pal will come back to you.

But be very sure, my dear, that your surmises about your husband are not imagination. If you women are not imagination, nervous condition leads them to think things that are not so.

NATTY: To be perfectly frank, Natty, I think you would be very much wiser if you did not write or phone this young man. If he is "truthfully say you love" if he is interested in you he will show it in some way and if you take the initiative he may be disgusted and lose all interest.

JUST WORRIED ME: If you can't trust the boy friend, maybe it would be better to quit and forget him. Which is what his sister has done. Isn't it? Why not take his word that he likes you better than he does the other girl, and say no more concerning her to him? That would be the wisest thing if you can do it.

Coy Chinese Must Have Hair Cuts

By GLADYS GLAD

An attempt was recently made by the old-fashioned gentry in China to compel Chinese girls to stop bobbing their tresses. But it was most unsuccessful. For those little bobs in a big way. And they now have their beauty shops for cutting, waving and beautifying their tresses just as do we Occidentals.

There is no doubt but that beauty shops have done a great deal to assist women in their striving for loveliness. But there is one practice indulged in by most beauty shops of which I do not approve in the least. And that is the use of hot air currents for drying the hair.

The health of the hair depends largely upon the condition of the papillae and the oil sacs. The hair scalp is just as sensitive to extremes of temperature as is the skin of the face. And although the occasional use of the hot air current will not materially harm the hair this drying method is likely to have a decidedly detrimental effect on the hair if employed once a week regularly or even once a month.

Blasts of hot air dry the scalp and call heavily upon the store of natural oil. And if you are a thin individual, and your scalp does not exude sufficient oil to supply the normal quantity, the use of the hot air dryings may cause the appearance of dry, scaly dandruff on your scalp.

Agitation for better radio broadcasting of play-by-play descriptions of the annual World's Series baseball games may result in Commissioner K. M. Landis, czar of baseball, demanding a showdown with the chain broadcasting systems.

The thousands of fans who, of necessity, must hug loud speakers to see the games of the yearly classic through a radio broadcaster's eyes, are complaining.

At least this revelation is contained in editorial comment appearing in the Sporting News, which predicts that "before another World's Series rolls around, Commissioner Landis, according to advices from Chicago, is going to ask those who broadcast the series games to sit down with him before the games start and get their talking orders."

"In the first place," the editorial explains, "the broadcasters must qualify as experts of the game and in the second place they must take their oaths as gentlemen that they will not try to umpire the games as they go along." The News concludes:

"Baseball cannot afford to have such haphazard broadcasts as have been furnished in World's Series games the past few years. All the real fans are experts—they cannot be fooled—and when they hear announcers talking about Texas Leaguers cutting through the pitcher's box, fouls landing between first and third base, fielders making diving catches at their shoe tops of pop flies, and similar absurd statements, they have every reason for doubting the accuracy of other details that go through the microphones. The baseball public is fed up on word artists trying to cover up their ignorance with a lot of verbosity. The game's the thing, not the golden tongues that produce them."

One of the few consoling thoughts in conducting a post-mortem of Xenia Central's 19 to 0 defeat by Greenville is the fact that the game, if nothing else, uncovered a promising ball carrier for the Blues.

Inserted in the game at halfback, Tom Huston, a junior, gained quite a bit of yardage for Central High and showed every indication of having the qualities of an elusive runner. Not only that but Tom played a good defensive game, often spilling Greenville backs behind the line of scrimmage.

One of Xenia's noteworthy weaknesses, a lot of fans agree, is laxity of defense behind the line of scrimmage. The Blues have a fairly staunch line, considering its weight but after opposing ball carriers get past the scrimmage line they have comparatively easy sailing, unless Freddie Dalton happens to be in the vicinity.

The Xenia-Greenville game was prevented from being a total loss as far as spectators were concerned, by the fact that a fairly good live-place German band brought over from Greenville. The members looked the part of Germans, dressed the part, played German pieces, and, in fact, were of German descent. The Dutch band played well too, and with gestures.

Wilberforce Repulses Southerners 32 To 0

RIFLE-SHOT PASSES BEWILDER 'BAMA STATE TEAM AT COX FIELD

Huge Crowd Amazed At Swift Running And Passing Attack Of Winners; 'Force Making Bid For National Honors This Year

By PHIL FRAME

ILLING the ozone above Cox Field with passes Friday night, Wilberforce University's unbeaten football eleven repulsed the invasion of a hitherto undefeated Southern school by romping to a 32 to 0 victory over Alabama State Teachers of Montgomery, Ala., in an intersectional tussle before a large throng of fans.

Renewing its bid for national recognition in colored college football, the green and gold tidal wave engulfed the Alabama invaders in so decisive a manner as to leave no question of the Graves-coached team's clear-cut superiority.

Both by land and air the Bulldogs staged relentless advances toward the Alabama goal throughout the game, but it was their brilliant and unerring forward passes that bewildered the Southern eleven. Wilberforce tossed nine passes, and completed eight for a total of 144 yards. Frequent penalties cost the 'Force 135 yards and checked many other goalward thrusts.

Wilberforce gridders signified their intentions in the first two minutes of play, scoring shortly after recovering a fumble on the Alabama twenty-two. Seizing the "break," a series of bullet-like line thrusts ended with Halback Hart knocking across the goal line for the first touchdown. Fullback "Cat" Terry promptly drop-kicked the extra point.

Later in the same period a beautifully executed trick pass with Quarterback Ernie Ashe on the receiving end paved the way for a second score. Terry flipped a twenty-five-yard aerial to the signal-barker, who stepped to the ten-yard mark. Terry hit the line three times and on his third try crossed the last white line.

Wilberforce capitalized on another "break" to add another touchdown in the second quarter. After a kick had been blocked and retrieved on the Alabama twenty, Ralph Scurry, former Xenia Central High star, heaved a fifteen-yard pass to St. Robinson, end, Scurry plunged to within a foot of the goal as the first period ended, and Ashe lunged over the goal. Terry drop-kicked another added point through the uprights.

Although substitutes chiefly composed the Wilberforce lineup during the second half, there was no noticeable difference in the play of the Bulldogs.

Carrying on after their predecessors left, Van "Jinx" Jenkins, subbing for Hart at halfback and Perry "Runt" White, understudy for Ashe at quarter, collaborated to score the next touchdown via the overhead method in the third stanza. Jenkins rifled a ten-yard throw to White, who dodged the remaining twenty-four yards for the score.

Soon after the fourth period started, Wilberforce advanced the ball from the Alabama thirty to the ten, from where Jenkins twisted, turned, shook off several tacklers, and finally squirmed across the goal.

Wilberforce was without the services of Milton "Pash" Fowler, all-American end in 1929 and 1930 who is out for the balance of the season with torn leg ligaments received in the Tuskegee game at Xenia last week.

Memories of the years when he used to get off extraordinary punts for Xenia Central High teams were revived by Ralph Scurry, who played almost the entire game for the 'Force at halfback. Being most of the kicking, Scurry's toe kept the play deep in Alabama territory. He proved a capable ground gainer as well.

Alabama, mentored by Gaston Lewis, a former Caesar Creek Twp. boy who learned about football under Coach Harry Graves of Wilberforce, never seriously threatened the Wilberforce goal. Once in the first half, due to a partly blocked punt, the Southern legged the ball on the Wilberforce twenty-one, but could not progress further.

Wilberforce, in scoring its fourth triumph this season, made eleven first downs against four for Alabama. Unable to gain on a running attack, Alabama also resorted to passes but with slight success, completing only three out of twelve tries for nineteen yards while two were intercepted.

A steady drizzle of rain throughout most of the second quarter made the field somewhat slippery, and the wall rather difficult to handle in the second portion of the game. Lineups and summary:

Wilberforce (32 Pos. Alabama (0)
S. Robinson L. E. Campbell
Horne L. T. Drake
Rose L. G. Coger

Frank Ossenburg, Dayton, who had previously served as vice-president, was elevated to the presidency of the trades and industries section of the Central Ohio Teachers' Association at its annual meeting Friday afternoon at the O. S. and S. O. Home in Xenia.

Mr. Ossenburg presided at the meeting in the absence of the president, T. S. Presser, Sidney.

About seventy-five persons attended the meeting, held in the new James Barnett vocational trades school. They were entertained at luncheon at 1 o'clock, and the program of the session, commencing at 2 p. m., included speeches by R. W. Jenkins, assistant foreman of conference service of Ohio, and Windle E. Whipp, head of the Monarch Machine Tool Co., Sidney.

An opportunity was given the visitors to inspect the new trades building at the institution. E. Balmer, supervisor of vocational trades at the Home, was host to the group on the inspection tour.

BATH TOWNSHIP AND TWIN CITIES HAVE AMPLE CANDIDATES

Voters of Bath Twp. and Fairfield and Osborn villages have a grand total of sixty-one candidates to pick from in choosing their office-holders in the township and villages at Tuesday's election.

Rivalry is especially keen for public positions in Fairfield, where the office-seekers total twenty-six. There are sixteen candidates for Osborn offices and nineteen for the township.

Adam E. Longstreth, present township justice of the peace and member of village council, and Charles W. Pfister, member of the board of public affairs, are the rival candidates for mayor of Fairfield, where R. O. Routzong, present mayor, is not running again.

Candidates for six seats on the council number twelve, including four present councilmen, D. G. Romsper, William Lang, John H. Honaker and J. H. Dersch. The other candidates are S. H. Pierce, John C. Newcomb, G. F. Stephens, William H. Parsons, Erwin Boger, Harry J. Wilson, Fred J. Nieffler and Harry Toms.

The job as village marshal is sought by six candidates as follows: Harrison Null, L. H. Douglas, John L. High, Samuel Todd, C. E. Hull and Wm. E. Hume. John Swadner is marshal at present and he is not seeking another term. Hume, one of the candidates, has held the position before.

Thomas J. Smith, incumbent and Marion Feeders are rival candidates for clerk. Roy E. Bassett is unopposed for another term as treasurer. With only three to elect, C. F. Suediker, present member, S. H. Pierce and Charles Gano will be elected on the board of public affairs. Pierce will be required to resign his position on the board, however, if he is elected to council.

Mayor W. T. Naragon of Osborn will be re-elected without opposition as well as Sumner S. Schauer as clerk and H. A. Dellinger, C. E. Semler and Harvey K. Miller on the board of public affairs of this village. The three are present board members.

Seven candidates are in the race for village council, Adam J. Gerlach is a new candidate while J. L. Yost, F. A. Kendig, Charles F. Hoke, F. C. Massey, G. W. Troutman and W. T. Groner are present councilmen. H. Glen Shepard, after another term as marshal, is opposed by Sidney Cornelius, while Ella F. Moore, treasurer, has Fred E. Kauffman as her opponent.

Two constables for Bath Twp. will be elected from a field of five candidates that consists of H. Glen Shepard and W. A. Schneider, present constables, Harrison Null, Sidney Cornelius, and C. E. Hull. Delmer C. Horner, L. H. Hartley, and Ralph Fulton, hunting another term on the township school board, face opposition from Gilbert H. Young and Roy Bassett. Opposing Fred Sheelbarger, Ralph E. Terline and Clarence Storck for reelection as township trustees are Walter E. Spahr, M. L. Stewart and W. H. Parsons. Harry Toms stands in the way of another term for R. O. Routzong, as township clerk, while Theodore F. Longenecker, whose term expires as one of the two justices of the peace, is unopposed.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—All sections of the stock list moved into higher price levels in the week-end market.

The final spurt today was led by the oils, which pushed forward in response to reports that drilling in East Texas would be suspended for fifteen days.

Railroad stocks were in good call at the outset, but profit taking gradually slowed up the advance in this section of the list.

Loews led the upturn in the amusement stocks and moved ahead 2 points, while Standard of New Jersey led the upturn in the oils.

READ THIS FIRST: Lois Corbin, a pretty working girl, falls in love with Bruce Durand, who is from one of the wealthiest families in Chicago. Ashamed to let him know where she lives, Lois goes to share an apartment with Margaret and Arlene, two girl friends. Bruce spends all of his time with Lois, and takes her to the nicest places in Chicago on line and dance. One day he tells her that he has a surprise for her, and when she gets with him that evening he tells her that his mother and father are dead and that his Uncle Charles has raised him. Lois is surprised when Bruce says his mother's diamond on her finger and tells her that he loves her. Margaret and Lois spend a great deal of time on the night that she is going to the country club with Bruce. After she is all dressed Margaret insists that she wear beads that belong to Arlene. Bruce arrives and is admiring Lois in her beautiful new formal when Arlene comes into the room. Arlene makes herself very noticeable by lighting Bruce's cigarette for him and in other ways. When she sees that Lois has on her beads she takes that chance to embarrass her. Lois is hurt at first, but she soon forgets about it when she is transplanted into the beautiful world that is the North Shore Country Club. Lois notices that one woman who has been introduced to her as Mrs. Hayes is looking at her around all evening. Just as they are ready to go home she pounces upon Lois, claiming that Lois is one of the burglars who looted her home the week before. Bruce is terribly angry, and asks Mrs. Hayes to step inside the dressing room because she is causing a scene. Mrs. Hayes proves that the dress Lois has on is one that was stolen from her home. Lois tells them that she purchased the dress in a second-hand store on Clark street. Mrs. Hayes agrees to drop the case, since Lois is a friend of Bruce's, but she intimates that she is going to let her aunt know about the affair. Lois cannot keep from crying when Bruce says "good night" to her. She tells Margaret all about it, and even though she is somewhat consoled by her, Lois has a feeling that her picture, together with a complete write-up of the incident at the club, will be in the morning paper.

Here's Movie Menu Here; Try These Without Fear

"The Vice Squad," at the Bijou Theater Sunday and Monday, is Paramount's film interpretation of the expose of vice squad operations in New York city and is rated by critics as a dramatic tale of metropolitan police corruption.

The picture was well cast and John Cromwell did a good job of directing. Paul Lukas, Kay Francis, Helen Johnson, Rockcliffe Fellers, Pat Collins and others are in the cast. The picture will be screened Sunday and Monday.

It is perhaps coincidental that the Orphum will screen a picture of the same type at that theater Sunday and Monday. It is Columbia's famous film, "The Criminal Code," from the celebrated and recent stage success by Martin Flavin.

The film is packed with drama and Columbia dressed the picture with an outstanding cast, which Howard Hawks directed. Walter Huston, Phillips Holmes, Constance Cummings, Mary Doran, DeWitt Jennings, Boris Karloff, John St. John and others are in the cast. Jack Perrin is at the Orphum Tuesday in "The Kid From Arizona," a horse opera as you may have guessed. Josephine Hill plays with him. But the Orphum is making Tuesday bargain night by running two features and no shorts. The second offering of the bargain bill is "Air Police," a Sono-Art production packed with thrills. Your old friend Kenneth Harlan, who may or may not have fallen upon evil days, plays the lead with Charles Delaney and Josephine Dunn.

Charles Delaney is at the Orphum again Wednesday and Thursday in the leading role of a Sono-Art melodrama titled "Hell Bent for Frisco." Vera Reynolds plays with him and William Desmond and Wesley Barry are also in the cast.

The Orphum offering Friday and Saturday is a Western Columbia called "Branded," in which Buck Jones is featured. Ethel Kenyon is the girl. Another Knute Rockne football short will be run with the Sunday and Monday bill at the Orphum. In this film Rock shows his favorite plays for last minute scoring. You'll like it.

Betty Compton, Conrad Nagel and Robert Ames collaborate on "Three Who Loved," the Radio feature film at the Bijou Tuesday. You may have heard of it. It depicts the Compton blonde in one of her best efforts and George Archibald did some fine direction. Robert Emmett O'Connor is also in the cast.

Manager Jimmie Hibbert has not revealed his program at the Bijou for Wednesday and Thursday but is offering the Ramon Novarro picture, "Son of India," at his theater Friday and Saturday. You'll like this Metro with Conrad Nagel, Marjorie Rambeau, Madge Evans, C. Aubrey Smith, Mitchell Lewis, John Miljan and Nidel de Bruller in the supporting cast.

New Peoples Building And Savings Home Handsome Downtown Addition

Green St. Structure Is Ornament; To Be Occupied Monday

A SUBSTANTIAL testimonial and memorial to the thrift of thousands of people, the completed new home of The Peoples Building and Savings Co., on Green St., adjacent to the Citizens National Bank, into which the company is moving Saturday, is unrivaled in the city in grandeur of architecture. The firm will open for business at its new location Monday.

Of fireproof construction of concrete and steel, the two-story building is modern in every respect. The entire first floor will be occupied by the association for building and loan and savings facilities, making one of the handsomest small banking interiors in this part of the state.

Every facility has been provided for the convenience and enjoyment of patrons. The entire design is carried out in an attractive modern type, offering simplicity and refinement, while at the same time meeting the practical requirements of an institution of this character.

The front of the structure is constructed of black Italian granite to an elevation of nine feet and at this height is indented four feet. The remainder of the front above the nine-foot elevation is built of hand-polished Bedford stone. All bronze metal work has been used.

Entering through the generous vestibule, patrons will find a spacious yet conveniently arranged public lobby, beyond which are low counters where the general banking business is conducted. The lobby has a rose-tinted marble floor and counter with all metal work of bronze, black walnut paneled wood and wainscot. The security vault construction is of the latest design and all floors are of reinforced concrete. New steel furniture has been installed. The paneling is finished in a soft velvet tone, giving a dignified and restful atmosphere throughout.

The entire ceiling is beautifully paneled and decorated in soft, modern colors in attractive design. Everything has been carefully arranged to produce a harmonious effect.

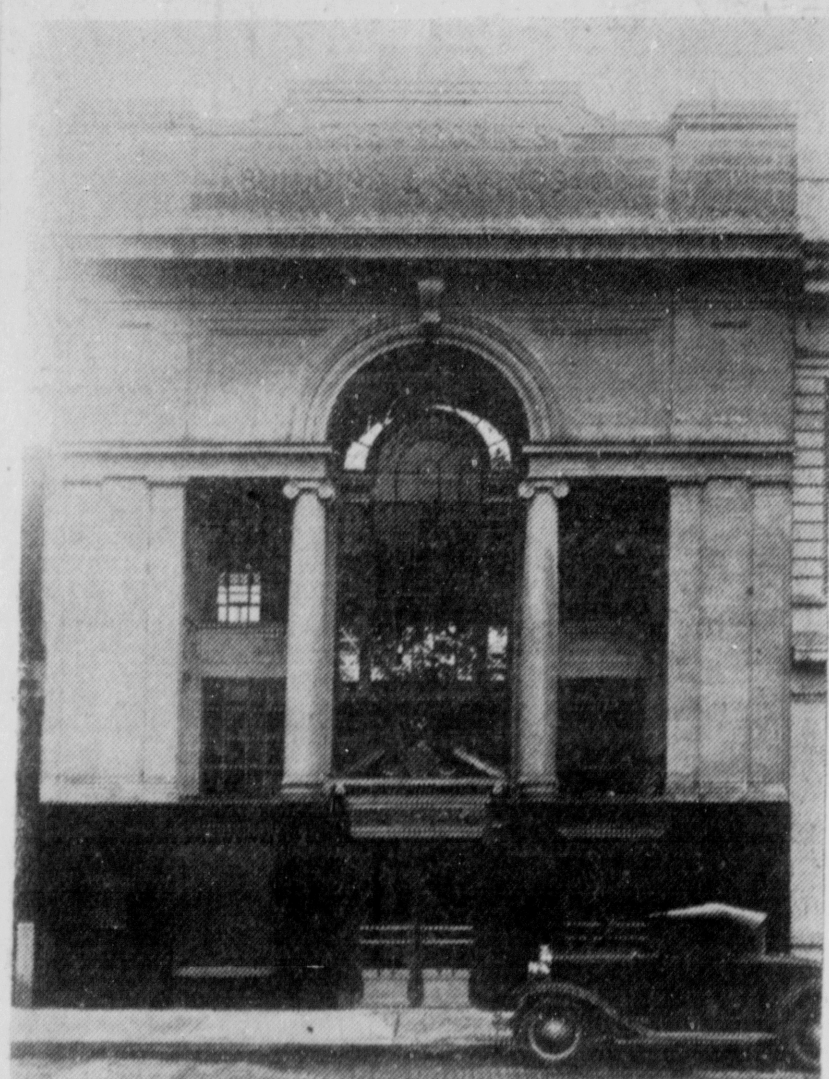

A room for the directors is provided in the basement and space is also available for storage purposes. Plumbing, heating, ventilating and electrical equipment is entirely up to date.

On the second floor is provided an office layout with every detail designed to meet the most exacting demand of tenants. The building was constructed by McCutchan Bros., local contracting firm, and Edward P. Musselman, Dayton, was the architect.

Craftsmen employed on the building were Heaton and Jones, 430 S. Detroit St., who did the stone and brick work; J. F. Molitor, 27 California St., plastering contractor; Fred Hornick, 224 Union St., electrical contractor; Green County Lumber Co., lumber, millwork and plaster; Globe-Wernicke Co., Cincinnati, steel desks, tables, bookcases, shelving, counters and grillwork and The Schachne Studios, 219 W. First St., Dayton, interior decorating.

The savings company has occupied a location on E. Market St. The building which formerly occupied the site of the new home was razed.

GOING AROUND IN WASHINGTON

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Senator Norris and Mr. Wickersham may be seen any day grazing peacefully together on a well kept Virginia lawn overlooking the broad Potomac.

They are pet lambs presented to Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Doak by friends for their Virginia estate, Notre Nid, (Our Nest) located near historic Arlington Cemetery. Senator Norris is black and Mr. Wickersham is white. Mrs. Doak insists they were named by their donors. "We are very fond of them," she told recent guests. "They are really quite nice sheep. But every once in a while Senator Norris cuts up and gets into mischief and then we have to lock him up for a while. Mr. Wickersham is always a perfect gentleman."

Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, who served one term in the senate, was defeated and then re-elected last year. Although blind he is one of the most zealous book lovers in the capital. He has a library of over 50,000 volumes.

His constant purchases of new books is the despair of Mrs. Gore. His home here is piled high with them, and there are thousands stored away in the basement of the capitol.

Whenever, in his travels, he comes to a new city, the senator immediately makes inquiries about interesting book shops. He then browses about them for hours searching for desirable buys. He makes all purchases by his sense of touch.

Senator Gore is not the only blind man in the United States senate. Senator Thomas Schall, (R) of Minnesota, starts his second term at the December session. Like his Democratic colleague Senator Schall is also a book-lover. He covers a wide range of reading through the aid of his wife who reads aloud to him.

XENIAN TO PERFORM IN AMATEUR PLAY

Miss Kathryn Conklin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Conklin, Spring St., will play the title role in "Molly," a three act comedy to be presented by the Miami Valley Hospital Glee Club, Dayton, Friday evening. The performance will be given at Runnymede Playhouse starting at 8:30 o'clock.

The glee club will be featured in the entertainment and Xenians may procure tickets at Sohn's Drug Store. Miss Conklin is a member of the senior class of the Nurses' Training School of Miami Valley Hospital.

INVITES XENIANS TO CHURCH RITES

Invitations have been received by members of Trinity M. E. Church, this city, to attend rededication services of Christ Episcopal Church, Cape Girardeau, Mo., Sunday. The Rev. A. H. Beardsley, former pastor of Trinity, is now rector of this church.

The church, which is one of the oldest Episcopal churches in Missouri, has been completely rebuilt during the summer. Bishop Scarlet, formerly of Columbus, will be in charge of the dedication.

WILBERFORCE

Mrs. Amy Johnson of Franklin, Ohio, was the guest of her son, Mr. Melvin Johnson, Saturday and Sunday.

Dr. Hackman representing the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago was the guest of Dean F. A. McGinnis of the College of Liberal Arts, Wednesday.

The young women residing in Mitchell Hall gave a surprise party Thursday evening in honor of their matron's birthday, Mrs. Ella Callman. Miss Longenius Herman, on behalf of the young women, presented a bunch of roses to Mrs. Callman who responded with a few well chosen remarks.

Mrs. Alberta Banner Whitaker gave a Halloween party at the Scarborough Teachers Home Wednesday evening in honor of members of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority. The decorations were black and orange in keeping with Halloween occasions. The guests endeavored to follow traditional customs in merry-making and to discover their future husbands.

Mr. T. K. Gibson, chairman of the board of directors and Mr. A. P. Bentley, vice president and agency of officers, of the Supreme Liberty Life Insurance Co., Chicago, accompanied by the Rev. Alvin Russell, president of St. Paul Industrial School of Lawrenceville, Va., were guests of Prof. and Mrs. Charles Smith, Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Lenora Lane and Miss Anna O'H. Williamson, accompanied a number of the members of this year's teacher training class to Dayton, Friday, to attend the sessions of the Central Ohio Teachers' Association.

Mr. Charles Noel Young, son of the late Col. Charles Young of the United States Army, and Mrs. Ada Young, who resides on the Columbus Pike, sailed last week on the steamer Deutschland for Russia, with Mr. George Tines, a former star of the football squad of Wilberforce University. Mr. Young and Mr. Tines are employed by the Russian government as agricultural advisors and will give scientific instruction in farming. Their work will be in the southern part of Russia and will continue for a period of two years.

Mr. Young is a graduate of Ohio State University and recently secured his master's degree of the same school, and successfully taught agriculture in the college at Prairie View, Texas. After completing his assignment at this school, he was employed at Langston University, Oklahoma, where he remained until he resigned and signed the contract with the Russian government.

Mr. Tines is a graduate of the agricultural department of the C. N. and I. Department at Wilberforce University and accepted a position as instructor in one of the Southern schools.

Mrs. Ruth Smithers of Springfield, a former resident of the community, was a visitor among her numerous friends, Wednesday.

Mr. L. L. Lackey, after an extended visit with friends in Indianapolis, Ind., and witnessing the Wilberforce - Tuskegee football game in Chicago, returned home Monday.

The members of the football team of the Alabama State College, of Montgomery, Ala., were given a hearty welcome at chapel exercises Thursday morning. The home team and students gave several college yells. President H. C. Trenholm, who accompanied the visiting team, delivered an spicy address, which was followed with several musical selections by the orchestra of the Alabama State College.

Mr. James Woods, due to illness, was granted permission to withdraw from school for two weeks, and returned to his home in Lorain, Ohio.

Mrs. Mary Lee, the widow of Bishop B. F. Lee, who has been confined to her home the greater part of the summer and fall months from illness, is improving.

It is announced that Bishop J. H. Jones, who returned six weeks ago to Boston, Mass., to an oculist, for further treatment of his eyes, is improving and in all probability will be able to return home in a week or so.

Mr. James Newsome, assistant superintendent and family were called to Columbus last week to attend the funeral of his brother's little girl, Betty Jane, age ten years, who was killed in an automobile accident.

Mr. Mack M. Greene of the department of dramatics, has started a movement for a proposed student organization whereby the student body may have a voice and representatives in athletics, student paper, year book, entertainments and dramatics. The student presidents of each subsidiary are to be sub-secretaries to the general secretary, and shall represent their several departments in all meetings as well as having a voting power on all issues, while the faculty members are to act only in an advisory capacity. A general questionnaire covering seven vital questions is in the hands of the members of the general faculty, and the matter will be discussed and probably adapted at the general faculty meeting Tuesday night.

Miss Iola Bronston-Smith of Springfield, a commercial student, 1930, was a visitor on the campus Tuesday.

Mrs. Ella Shields, who underwent a minor operation in Grant Hospital, Columbus, has returned home and is able to be around her room again.

Miss Rilda Phelps, one of the nurses in Tawawa Hospital, who has been seriously ill for several weeks is convalescent and will soon be able to resume her duties looking after the student patients who come under her care in the hospital.

Col. H. S. Wygant, P. S. M. T., accompanied twenty students of the R. O. T. C. on an educational trip to the aviation field in Dayton and Fairfield Monday. The purpose of the trip was to give the students an opportunity to visit various army departments and become better acquainted with the construction of army planes and other war equipment used in the regular army.

Those who accompanied Col. Wygant were Maj. O. Kincaid, Inf., Capt. Grover Harden, Inf., First Lt. Charles E. Points, Jr., Inf., First Lt. Perdue, Chaplain, Mr. William E. Johnson, custodian of buildings and grounds of the C. N. and I. department.

Judge James I. Allread of Columbus and Judge Roscoe G. Hornbeck of London, who were holding a session of the Second District of County Court of Appeals in Xenia last Wednesday, visited Atty. Charles Points Jr., in the evening and made a tour of the campus and buildings. They expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the school during their short visit in the community.

The faculty research group of Wilberforce University, college of education met at the residence of Mr. A. M. Chavous and mad plans for the year's activities. Mrs. Kittle Fenner Jones was elected chairman, succeeding Miss A. O'H. Williamson. Members present were: Miss A. O'H. Williamson, Mrs. Marcella Wallace Martin, Miss Lucinda Cook, Mr. Saulsbury Mr. E. Champ Warrick, Mr. A. W. Chavous, Mrs. Kittle Fenner Jones, Mrs. Lenora Carrington Lane.

Mrs. Edna Woodson, who attended the tenth quadrennial convention of the W. M. M. Society of the

A. M. E. Church, at St. Louis, Mo., has returned home.

"Since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary," the authorities of Wilberforce University have conducted prayer meetings Wednesday evenings and students were compelled to attend, notwithstanding the fact strenuous objections were made by many of the students, and the meetings were becoming unpopular. The matter was carefully studied and a survey made to ascertain if other colleges of the same standing as the university were holding prayer meetings. It was learned that Fisk

University, Nashville, Tenn., Atlanta University, Atlanta, Ga., and Howard University, Washington, D. C., had modified their rules. Wilberforce University will require all students to attend prayer meetings on the second and fourth Wednesday nights and the first and third Wednesday nights will be optional.

Rev. Lendell Chas. Ridley, doctor of philosophy of Wilberforce University is giving a series of lectures at vesper services in Springfield.

On the 28th, Dr. Ridley spoke for the Y. M. C. A. in Dayton at the noon lunch hour.
